Hortonworks and Cloudera Merge and What It Means to Our Valued Customers

Cloudera and Hortonworks are pleased to announce that we have entered into a definitive agreement to merge our two companies. Over the past 10 years, Cloudera and Hortonworks have defined and shaped the market for big data and analytics in the enterprise. We are excited at the opportunity this gives us to deliver more value to you, and deliver it faster, as we work together to define the next generation enterprise data cloud. We intend to bring together our combined assets to enable enterprise IT to span public clouds, datacenters, the Edge and everywhere in between. Our mission is to deliver a platform that works with cloud ease and elasticity everywhere enterprises need to work - the industry's first enterprise data cloud from the Edge to AI.

Our combined scale and resources will allow us to invest more in what you have told us you want - a modern hybrid data platform running the enterprise's most demanding IoT/streaming, data engineering, data warehousing and machine learning/AI applications across the datacenter, public clouds and the Edge. Together we are stronger - with approximately $720 million in TTM revenue, more than $500 million in cash, zero debt, and a growing top line. We plan to deliver an even better platform, advancing towards a shared vision of the future and all backed by a vibrant and growing open source community.

This is an exciting time - here's what you can expect from us as we begin our journey as a combined team:

- For the next several months the two independent companies will be hard at work delivering on their pre-existing roadmaps and planning for our shared future.
- Once the merger closes, we plan to create a near-term "unity release" that combines the best of both worlds of CDH 6 and HDP 3. Existing customers can upgrade to this unity release at their discretion.
- Over time, we plan to make this unified platform a functional superset of all past CDH and HDP releases and our future capabilities.
- Open source will remain a central element of our shared future both in the community and with our customers. The combined company will continue to provide a supported 100% open source platform equivalent to the current HDP and HDF offerings.

We also recognize that different customers will want to embrace our long-term future at different speeds. For this reason we will extend plans to maintain and enhance CDH, HDF and HDP for the next 3 years. This is intended to give you the confidence to look forward to a steady stream of innovation on the platforms you already use. Where possible, we plan to cross-port valuable components and features across our two platforms to make transition to our next generation "unity" platform easy. Very soon every one of our combined customers will have the opportunity to extend their data platform from the Edge to AI, leveraging the unique assets each of our companies bring to this merger.

We hope you are as excited as we are for our collective future. The potential for data to transform business is greater than ever and the need for modern data management from the Edge to AI has never been more urgent. We look forward to working with you all on our shared journey.

Rob
